

The National Institutes of Health,
Tribal Health Research Office Announces the

2019 TRADITIONAL MEDICINE SUMMIT

November 20, 2019 to November 22, 2019

University of Colorado Anschutz
Nighthorse Campbell Native Health Building
Aurora, CO 80045

A summary of the open sessions will be available on
THRO's website: <https://dpcpsi.nih.gov/thro>

Convening American Indian and Alaska Native (AI/AN) traditional healers, health care providers, and academic researchers in dialogue concerning the intersection of research, health services, and traditional healing practices. Goals of the summit include:

- Identifying approaches to respectful collaboration between traditional medicine practitioners and health researchers
- Exploring the relationships between traditional medicine and health care services
- Connecting younger generations of AI/AN people to traditional medicine, integrative health care, and academic research

About THRO

THRO collaborates with AI/AN communities to develop research efforts that are acceptable and beneficial to AI/AN communities.

For more information, visit: <https://dpcpsi.nih.gov/thro>

Hosted By

National Institutes of Health
Tribal Health
Research Office (THRO)
&
National Center for Complementary and Integrative Health

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

Please direct all inquiries to the Tribal Health Research Office
NIHTribalCommittee@od.nih.gov